

WASTE & RECYCLING NEWS

Alpine Waste accepting mixed rigids

By Shawn Wright | WASTE & RECYCLING NEWS

Posted May 15, 2012

DENVER (May 15, 12:30 p.m. ET) -- Alpine Waste & Recycling is now taking mixed rigid plastics for processing at its Denver recycling plant.

Commerce City, Colo.-based Alpine Waste said it is the first company in the Denver area to actively seek mixed rigid plastics, such as lawn furniture, five-gallon buckets and pallets, according to a news release.

The company, which recently expanded its recycling plant, said it is able to handle the heavy plastics because its facility has a long pre-sort line.

The plant also has an open layout and chutes built into the line that have the capacity to handle the plastics, according to a news release.